Hardwood Lumber Grading Short Course July 19-22, 2010

The McKeever Environmental Learning Center in Sandy Lake, PA, located 1 hour north of Pittsburgh will host a Hardwood Lumber Grading Short Course July 19-22, 2010.

The cost of the course is $295.00. Course includes food, lodging, instruction and materials. To ensure personalized attention, enrollment is limited to 25 participants. Registration will be on a first come, first served basis. The instructor is Barry Kibbey, inspector and instructor from the National Hardwood Lumber Association.

The first day will be spent in thorough explanation and group discussion of NHLA rules and procedures for the inspection and measurement of hardwood lumber and the requirements for various grades. The next three days are spent in actual grading and individualized instruction.

The McKeever Center is located in western Pennsylvania and is readily accessible from Interstates 79 and 80.
